Best New Book for Mom VIEW Lis (40 BOOKS) WITH HUMOR USING U CRASH COURSES! Some classroom strategies are as successful as this simple approach: make learning fun! That, or course, is easier said than done, but when it comes to teaching American story content, the YouTube Crash Course series U.S. History is a fantastic place to start. The script of each episode is packed with humiliating observations about life and culture — the ones that help make strong points about the story being conveyed. As important, the host, John Green, has what it takes to keep students' interests: enthusiasm about their subjects, a kirky way and props, and an entertaining, sometimes departure delivery of content. Students like watching the series, which means they pay attention to it and learn! Primary sources to highlight! Teachers like it too, though, because the content is solid, rely on regular uses of primary sources, including Mystery Documentary features that occur in each episode, in how Green reads from a famous document in the period and has to see if it can identify the author.
